900 ~~800~~ Canadians Own Property in Ecuador!

WHY?

"Because we can!" responds William Burgel, who recently purchased one of the 1600 home sites from the Canadian company HolaEcuador. "With prices like that we can finally afford a property in the south."

"Prices start at $17,000 for a lot and $55,000 for a nice little beach house. For $120,000 you can own a luxurious home that would easily cost $300,000 or more in Canada."

"It's an ecological Canadian project, with all the amenities included. Electrical, water and sewage, internet, on-site security, pools, parks, tennis courts, and more – they really thought of everything," he adds, visibly proud of his acquisition.

One of the beautiful homes being built by HolaEcuador

But perhaps most attractive for property owners: the ocean! The project is situated on one of the 3 most beautiful beaches of Ecuador, directly in front of the 'Mini Galapagos' island in the Machalilla National Park.

The owners benefit from a half kilometer of private beach and enjoy the constantly warm and pristine waters of the Pacific Ocean – and without annoying algae or jelly-fish. It's one of the main reasons that we decided to develop at this location," says Yves Cormier and Gordon Poole, the Canadian co-owners of HolaEcuador.

ECUADOR?

"Ecuador has long been a well-kept secret, but tourism in the country is growing rapidly. It's the Costa Rica of 15 years ago," affirms Mr. Poole.

Ecuador has more than just beautiful beaches – it's perhaps the most bio-diverse country in the world! Within reach of a day trip are the Amazon rain forests and the incredible Andes mountain chain. And of course, the world famous Galapagos Islands.

All of this to offer, and with incredible infrastructure to boot. Gorgeous new highways (without potholes!), high-end, accessible healthcare, a secure and safe environment and an extremely low cost of living. In fact, Ecuador has the lowest cost of living in all of the Americas! A taxi in town costs only $1 and a daily lunch special in a seaside restaurant is rarely over $3.

From June through October 12,000 humpback whales come to play in the warm and safe waters directly in front of HolaEcuador's beachfront development.

HOW TO BECOME A PROPERTY OWNER?

"It's very simple," says Mr. Rochefort. "I saw an advertisement for an informational session in Metro News, I reserved a spot and I attended. The developers themselves were present and gave us all the information we needed. After the session, I requested a follow-up meeting with one of the HolaEcuador sales representatives at their office in Hull and a few weeks later I was the proud owner of my piece of paradise! In a couple of years I'll be building my dream home with HolaEcuador."

Goodbye snow, hello Pacific!

Sex assault, voyeurism

Soldier slapped with more charges

The Upper Ottawa Crime Unit of the Ontario Provincial Police today added seven additional charges of Sexual Assault and Voyeurism to the nine that Derrick Gallagher, 31, a soldier at CFB Petawawa, is already facing.

The new charges include one charge of sexual assault, five counts of voyeurism and one count of break and enter with intent to commit an indictable offence.

The charges bring the number of alleged victims to 16.

On March 29, the OPP launched an investigation into a report of a sexual assault. On April 1, they charged Gallagher with eight counts of sexual assault and two counts of voyeurism.

Gallagher appeared in the Ontario Court of Justice in Pembroke Thursday by video remand. The OPP is asking any female who has been in Gallagher's company to contact the Upper Ottawa Valley OPP detachment at 613-735-0188 or 1-888-310-1122.

VIA on track to fix signal glitches: CEO

Barrhaven blunder. Crown corporation's new boss says public was never at risk

LUCY SCHOLEY
lucy.scholey@metronews.ca

Most railway signal kinks in Barrhaven have been smoothed over, but more communication and safety measures are on track to rebuild the public's confidence in the crossings, says the CEO of VIA Rail.

Just four days after taking up his new role as head of the Crown corporation, Yves Desjardins-Siciliano gave a technical briefing at city hall on Thursday about the infamous signal light glitches. He apologized for VIA's "miscommunication" on the matter, but said the public's safety was never at risk.

"I'd rather fail on a communication matter than fail on an operating matter," he told councillors, city staffers and reporters.

A mix of electrical, operational, mechanical and software glitches caused the Automatic Warning Devices (AWDs) to light up in what's called "fail-safe mode." That means the signals went off despite the fact that there was no oncoming train.

Cameras will be installed at all six problem railway crossings — Woodroffe Avenue, Strandherd Drive, the OC Transpo Transitway, Fallowfield, Greenbank and Jockvale roads — by the end of the summer.

RailTerm, the company that provides signal maintenance for VIA, will amp up its assessments of the lights. A new $2-million siding for trains is in the works.

Former VIA Rail chief operating officer John Marginson was pulled out of retirement to oversee the repair work being done. Desjardins-Siciliano said he will be communicating with Marginson on a daily basis.

Mayor Jim Watson said he was "cautiously optimistic" about VIA's findings and planned solutions.

"While the president of VIA might be technically correct, the fact of the matter is there is this uncertainty when people are crossing those crossings in the Barrhaven area," he said, "and until that level of confidence returns, then obviously we still have a problem to deal with."

Ottawa terror suspect now on trial feared RCMP surveillance

At the time of his arrest in Aug. 2010. RCMP had collected 76 wiretaps and audio probes

JOE LOFARO
joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

An accused terror suspect now on trial in Ottawa expressed fear about Canada's top police force tracking him even as officers were doing exactly that three years ago at his home in the city's west end, court heard Thursday.

Misbahuddin Ahmed, 30, has pleaded not guilty to charges of conspiring to facilitate terrorist activity, participating in a terrorist group, and possession of explosive substances with the intent to cause injury or damage to property.

The RCMP's national security team, INSET, had been tracking Ahmed and another alleged co-conspirator for months before his Aug. 25, 2010 arrest in Ottawa. The other individual cannot be identified due to a publication ban.

The Crown alleges Ahmed was supporting the cause of "violent Islamic jihad in Canada and abroad."

In a conversation on March 23, 2010 with the alleged co-conspirator, Ahmed said he wasn't afraid of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, according to the Crown's transcripts of a recording of the conversation.

The authors of the transcripts are expected to testify as witnesses.

"They're garbage," said Ahmed of Canada's spy agency. "Me, if CSIS call me and say they wanna talk to me, I'll say: "I have nothing to talk to you about."

But if the RCMP gets involved, "then you have an issue," the accused said on the recording.

"Because these guys, they threaten you. I have a brother who had to deal with them," the accused said. "They came up to him, they threatened him."

By that night, the RCMP had already listened in on the pair five times before without their knowledge. At the time of Ahmed's arrest five months later, police had collected 76 wiretaps and audio probes, all of which will be entered as evidence.

"After fishing, if they (CSIS) find someone then they have to basically get like a proper order and stuff like that from court if they want to put like, let's say, listening devices and things like that and so forth," said the accused. "So they don't, they can't do it unless they know for sure and they can prove it."

The trial continues Friday.

Ashley White spared jail time for 2010 stabbing

Ashley White leaves the Ottawa courthouse Thursday. JOE LOFARO/METRO

A 26-year-old woman convicted of stabbing her Afghanistan war vet boyfriend in the chest was handed a suspended sentence by a judge Thursday.

Justice Lynn Ratushny spared the Ottawa woman jail time and instead placed her on probation for two years for the July 2010 domestic incident. The steak knife used in the stabbing on the 36-year-old boyfriend, Patrick Halcro, pierced his lung.

Ashley White was charged with attempted murder, but a jury found her guilty of the lesser offence of aggravated assault.

"You are a good, young person who made a serious mistake," Ratushny told the woman and her several supporters who filled the courtroom Thursday.

The court heard Halcro and White had been drinking when they became embroiled in a fight at their home. Halcro hit White in the face twice, knocking her to the ground.

While he was in the hallway of their apartment building after the attack, White came running out with a knife and stabbed him once in the chest.

The judge said White acted, "impulsively, hysterically, and spontaneously in a complete outrage," but incarceration would be a "disproportionately harsh sentence."

Crown prosecutor Carl Lem had asked for a year in jail and two years probation.

White must report to a probation officer when required, abide by a curfew in the first year of probation, abstain from alcohol, and provide a DNA sample as part of her probation conditions.

Ratushny also raised questions as to why Halcro — who attended the sentencing — was never charged. "On the facts before me however, his conduct can only be characterized as criminal in nature and also vicious and appalling."

Voices uniting in song at city's first LGBTQ choir festival

Unison Ottawa. Jazz, classical and folk performances slated for this weekend

Hundreds of people from across Canada will unite in song in Ottawa this weekend for the capital's first LGBTQ choir festival.

The Unison festivals happen every four years across the country. Now it's Ottawa's turn.

Unison Ottawa 2014 promises to be the biggest LGBTQ choir event with 600 delegates and 19 choirs from Vancouver to Halifax.

The music will be diverse, with a mix of jazz, classical and folk performances May 16 to 19.

"It's a very beautiful form of art," said Gianluca Ragazzini, president of Unison Ottawa 2014. "It's a very good way to show the true nature of the community — its identity and its aspiration for equality."

The theme Many Voices, One Song is a nod to the unifying experience of music in the LGBTQ community's fight for equal rights, he said.

"Although we come from different realities, different places, different ways of life ... we do share, all together, this common history," Ragazzini said.

Local choirs In Harmony, a Woman's Chorus, Choeur gai d'Ottawa Gay Men's Chorus and Tone Cluster – Quite a Queer Choir will be hosting the acts at École secondaire publique De La Salle at 501 Old St. Patrick St.

For more on the music lineup, visit unisonfestivalunisson.ca.

Federal Court. Ruling squelches plans for new reactors at Darlington plant

A Federal Court ruling has thrown out the preliminary approvals for a series of new nuclear power reactors in Ontario.

Ruling in a case brought by environmental groups, Justice James Russell says the environmental assessment for the proposed expansion of the Darlington nuclear plant fell short.

Russell says the assessment should have examined the environmental effects of radioactive fuel waste, a Fukushima-type accident and hazardous emissions.

As a result of the decision, the whole project is stalled until a panel can redo the assessment.

Ontario Power Generation's plan to expand Darlington has been in the works since 2006 and would have seen up to four new reactors built.

Environmentalists welcomed the ruling.

"This is a win for Canadians' right to meaningfully participate in environmental reviews and understand the risks of nuclear power," said Theresa McClenaghan, executive director of the Canadian Environmental Law Association.

The group was part of the suit, along with Lake Ontario Waterkeeper, Northwatch and Greenpeace.

"This is a common-sense ruling," said Shawn-Patrick Stensil of Greenpeace. "It boggles the mind that the federal authorities approved new reactors without first considering the environmental effects of radioactive waste and reactor accidents."

The Ontario government decided last October to suspend its reactor plans. But the ruling means that the project cannot be revived without more assessment.

'It's a long list': RCMP

Gatineau man accused of forging gangsters' passports

The RCMP have arrested a Gatineau man accused of forging Canadian passports for some of Canada's most-wanted criminals.

After a 17-month-long RCMP investigation, Harbi Mohamoud "Dave" Gabad was charged with 10 counts of fraudulently obtaining passports and identity theft after the RCMP's Sensitive and International Investigations section conducted a search of his Gatineau apartment.

Gabad is accused of tricking Passport Canada into issuing passports using fake names for an extensive list of Canada's most wanted criminals including the notorious Alkhalil brothers Robby, 27, Nabil, 38 and Hisham Alkhalil, 32, and their equally dangerous allies.

"It's a long list," said RCMP Cpl. Lucy Shorey.

The Alkhalils moved their global crime syndicate from B.C. to Ottawa shortly after two of the five brothers in the family were killed in a gang-land slaying, police say.

Warrants have been issued for Robby Alkhalil, who is currently incarcerated in an Athens, Greece jail for murder, Nabil, whose whereabouts is unknown and Terry, who was arrested by Ottawa police in January and charged with trafficking millions of dollars worth of cocaine.

The RCMP uncovered the passport scheme after their new facial-recognition ePassport technology caught two passports issued to Robby Alkhalil in 2012. On closer inspection, the RCMP uncovered a series of passport applications, all backing claims of citizenship using Quebec birth certificates and all sharing the same guarantors, references and emergency contacts coming from the Outaouais area of Quebec. Ottawa cast in eerie light in horror web series

Scream all you want. Horror genre provides chance to talk about taboo subjects, says director

Low-budget

New episodes of Scream All You Want will air on Youtube weekly.

LUCY SCHOLEY
lucy.scholey@metronews.ca

Horror film fans may find their fearful fix in a new low-budget web series — and they will likely recognize many of the shooting locations.

Scream All You Want is an eight-episode show filmed in Ottawa. It starts with a bloody knife, a murder, strange dreams and a cliffhanger that will give you the creeps more than make you scream. Since it hit the big Youtube screen on May 9, it has racked up about 3,500 views.

"The horror genre has a lot of options for exploration," said W. Thomas Leroux, a filmmaker on the series with Greg Murphy. "It gives us the opportunity to talk about things that, most of the time, we don't want to talk about."

While he's fairly tight-lipped on what that message is (you will have to watch the series to figure it out) he does say the series is about recognizing the importance of friends.

We also know that two slightly inept paranormal investigators will be employed to solve the scary happenings and add comedic relief.

Leroux said the low-budget film cost roughly the same as a "good, expensive vacation" and the entire cast and crew were volunteers.

Patty Boland's Irish Pub and an apartment west of Woodroffe Avenue are at least two spots Ottawans might pinpoint in the series.

It's not hard to find people in the city who will work on films or offer up locations for free, Leroux said.

"We're still not Toronto or Montreal, by any stretch of the imagination, but there is a thriving film community here," he said.

Tory pledge to cut jobs sparks fear of another Walkerton

Cost cutting.
Anniversary of E. coli tragedy casts spotlight on Ontario Tories' election promise

Fourteen years ago, a provincial government bent on cost-cutting and privatization contributed to a deadly waterborne disaster that unfolded over the Victoria Day long weekend — one that Ontario taxpayers are still paying for.

Now, a new would-be Progressive Conservative premier, Tim Hudak, is pledging to slash 100,000 public sector jobs — cuts far deeper than those that paved the way for the Walkerton, Ont., tragedy in May 2000.

Some worry history could be repeating itself.

"It can happen again," Walkerton resident Phil Englishman said of the public health crisis.

"(Cuts) can lead to another tragedy in other areas of the province — it doesn't have to be just water."

That message was not lost on Liberal Premier Kathleen Wynne, who took her election campaign to the town of 5,000 on Thursday to make that point.

Inquiry

- The E. coli outbreak that engulfed Walkerton killed seven people, including a baby, and sickened about 2,500 others, after floods swept farm manure into a vulnerable drinking-water well.
- A judicial inquiry faulted two brothers in charge of the water for failing to maintain proper disinfectant levels. But the inquiry also found the cost-cutting government of former Tory premier Mike Harris contributed by privatizing water testing and axing Ministry of Environment jobs.

Speaking at the Walkerton Clean Water Centre, built following the disaster as a water-quality training and research facility, Wynne took aim at Hudak's promised cuts.

"We need to learn from, and avoid returning to, the mistakes of Ontario's past," Wynne said.

"Decisions have consequences, cuts have consequences. Safe drinking water is not an optional service."

City's sex assault

Analysis. Attacks are reported more often in the region, but police don't know why

ARIK LIGETI
ottawa@metronews.ca

Vanier might get a bad rap for safety issues, but the Ottawa area consistently seeing the highest number of sexual offences reported to police is in East Orleans, Metro has learned.

Police zone 510, which covers the east of Orleans and part of Cumberland ward, has averaged 20 incident calls per year from 2002 and 2013.

This is one of Metro's findings after analyzing 12 years of police calls-for-service data for sexual offences, obtained through an access-to-information request.

The data included the offence type, date, time and location of more than 5,800 incidents reported to police. They provide a snapshot, though by no means a complete representation, of where and when sexual offences are happening in Ottawa.

"We don't have the full picture," said Angela McDade, a staff sergeant in the sexual assault and child abuse section.

When presented with the Orleans numbers, McDade was surprised. "I don't know what the cause is," she said.

McDade said her department doesn't have the resources to analyze incident data, and it instead relies on the crime analysis unit to alert it to any possible trends.

Unlike reporting homicides, McDade said it will always be a struggle for sexual assault victims to report to police, leaving the data incomplete.

"It's more surprising for someone to report than not to report," said Julie Lalonde, a support worker at Ottawa's sexual assault support centre and director of the Ottawa chapter of Hollaback!, an organization working to address street harassment.

There are many factors, including income status and relationship to the perpetrator, that will impact a person's decision to report, Lalonde said.

Unsurprisingly more late-night incidents happened on the weekend, and more daytime incidents occurred during the work week.

The 400 block of Elgin Street saw 74 incidents reported over the 12 years, the most of any one-block location. This could possibly be attributed to in-person reporting at the main police station, 474 Elgin.

Other places with a high number of calls included the 1000 block of Carling Avenue, where the Ottawa Hospital is located, the 0 block of Rideau Street, at the foot of the ByWard Market, and the 1100 block of Colonel By Drive, Carleton's

A note about the stats

- This story is based on calls-for-service incident data, which are calls to 911 initially identified and filed by a dispatcher as a sexual offence. The categorization of each incident may change after a police followup. Likewise, calls that are initially filed as an "assault" may change to the "sexual assault" categorization upon further investigation.
- The interactive map shows the total number of reported incidents by police zone over 12 years, not on a per-capita basis. Some zones with a higher number of incidents may also have denser populations. The number of incidents in each zone varies year to year.
- For a deeper dive into the data, Metro is making the original data set provided by Ottawa police available for download at metronews.ca.

campus.

While the data do not indicate if the location of the incident was outside or indoors, addressing community safety issues is important for reducing sexual assaults, said Elsy David, program director of the Women's Initiatives For Safer Environments (WISE).

"What is the lighting like? If I was alone here, could I see and be seen, hear and be heard?" David asked.

WISE regularly conducts safety audits of locations brought forward by members of the community. Incidents can happen anywhere, David said.

"There have been issues east to west and north to south," she said.

Response

Stats could mean victims are speaking out: Sociologist

An Ottawa sociologist says the fact that Ottawa has seen almost 6,000 reported sexual assault cases over the last 12 years is actually a good thing, as it suggests more victims are coming forward in what is typically an underreported issue.

Isabelle Côté, a social-sciences and social-work professor at the University of Ottawa, said Canada's capital is full of resources for victims of sexual violence and its services may be encouraging victims to report more crimes.

"In Ottawa I know there are lots of programs, resources, so maybe it's easier for victims to disclose because they know there are people out there for them who can believe them, who they can trust," Côté told Metro Thursday. "Obviously in places where there is more prevention, there is a decrease in sexual assault."

Côté was quick to point out, though, that only about 10 per cent of attacks are reported.

She said the fact that Ottawa is a government town has no bearing on how prevalent sexual assault is in the city. In fact, she said cities full of highly successful residents typically have more victims remaining silent. Racism, social class and stereotypes around sexual assault play into whether a complainant is believed, she said.

"In reality, what we have seen is that women are victimized by colleagues, fathers, brothers. Some of them are judges and lawyers — but we tend not to believe the victim as much if the perpetrator is a man that is wealthy in society."

Response

Market is safe, councillor says

Police stats on sex assaults show that the ByWard Market is a problematic location, but the councillor representing the area says those who frequent the popular neighbourhood need not worry.

Coun. Mathieu Fleury told Metro earlier this week crime has gone down in the market over the last five years, but he admits there are still some issues.

"I go there all the time. I speak to residents, I speak to retailers — the area is safe," said Fleury. "I am not saying it can't be safer, but the area is safe and I think that is important for people to know. You come down here, you don't have to worry; people are friendly."

Part of the problem is that once the sun goes down, the market becomes a party haven with patrons spilling out of the many local clubs and pubs that dot the market.

Fleury's plan is to initiate more night events that don't necessarily involve drinking, which would water down the concentration of drunks wandering through the market.

He's already initiated events like a night market on Thursdays. Also, through the city's ambassador program, students roam the market looking to help anybody in need.

"I think the more we can bring that to the area, the safer it will be," added Fleury. "We have police officers that are out of their car; they are walking the beat. We have merchants that have been there for 20 years and they report if they see issues."

Orleans Coun. Bob Monette was surprised to learn his ward is included in the most problematic area in the city: Police zone 510, which also stretches into Cumberland and Innes wards.

The area sees an average of 20 sexual assault incidents every year — the highest in the city. He wants to see the stats broken down ward-by-ward and said it's important to let his residents know how safe their streets are.

"I think it would be very important to do a community public forum with the community officers to educate the public as to what to look out for and how to respond to any incidents that are seen or are happening," said Monette. TREVOR GREENWAY/METRO

Nearly 2/3 of anglo-Canucks on social media: Poll

Social media poll. Over three in five social media users said they used a smartphone to read or post

While the number of Canadians using social media appears to be edging up gradually toward a possible plateau, mobile growth is strong, according to a new report.

Almost two-thirds of the 4,009 anglophone Canadians polled by telephone late last year for the Media Technology Monitor said they had used social media in the past month, while about one in four said they avoided social networking, and 11 per cent said they did not even use the Internet.

A new poll shows Facebook maintained a big lead over LinkedIn & Twitter. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Of the Internet users, 71 per cent said they were active social media users, up just three percentage points from 2012.

But there was significant growth in the number of respondents using a mobile device to access social networks.

Just over three in five social media users said they used a smartphone to log on to their social networks, up by 20 per cent from the previous year.

And about one in three said they used a tablet to log on to their social networks, up by about 50 per cent.

Facebook maintained its huge lead over its social media rivals in the past year. About 93 per cent said they were on Facebook, compared to 31 per cent for LinkedIn and 27 per cent for Twitter. The poll was conducted by between Oct. 7 and Dec. 1 last year. THE CANADIAN PRESS

United States survey

Honeybees had another bad year

Nearly one out of four American honeybee colonies died this winter — a loss that's not quite as bad as recent years, says a new U.S. Department of Agriculture survey of beekeepers.

Under siege from parasites, disease, pesticide use, nutrition problems and a mysterious sudden die-off, 23 per cent of bee colonies failed and experts say that's considerably less than the previous year or the eight-year average of 30 per cent losses. "It's better news than it could have been," said Dennis van Engelsdorp, a University of Maryland entomology prof who led the survey.

Mulcair stands ground on alleged misuse of budget

New Democrats.
Grilling prompted over complaints that party was improperly using Commons budget

Tom Mulcair stood his ground Thursday throughout an unprecedented two-hour grilling by a Commons committee over the NDP's allegedly improper use of parliamentary resources.

The NDP leader was at times contemptuous of his Conservative and Liberal tormentors but kept his temper in check as he insisted — repeatedly — that New Democrats have done nothing wrong.

Nothing he said persuaded Tory and Liberal MPs on the procedure and House affairs committee, who continued to allege the NDP has been using taxpayers' money to pay for partisan activities, in violation of parliamentary rules.

But none of their questions elicited any new ammunition with which to target the NDP.

"In seven years sitting on this committee, I have never seen a witness as evasive as this witness," said Conservative MP Stephen Woodworth, a lawyer who handled the questioning from the government side.

"In my 36 years in government, Mr. Woodworth, I've never seen the governing party get together with its handmaiden in the third party to convene (an interrogation of) the leader of the Opposition," shot back Mulcair, dismissing the spectacle as a partisan kangaroo court.

The two-hour standoff marked the first time in Canadian history that an opposition leader has been ordered to testify at a committee, according to the Library of Parliament.

Committees are ordinarily the forums in which MPs examine legislation and hold the government to account. But the Conservatives last month employed an obscure procedural manoeuvre to pass a motion in the Commons ordering Mulcair to appear at committee.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

The issue

- Thursday's grilling was prompted by Liberal and Conservative complaints that New Democrats improperly used their Commons budgets to pay staff in satellite party offices in Montreal, Quebec City and Toronto and used their free postal privileges to send bulk partisan mailings into four ridings that were in the midst of byelection campaigns late last year.
- On the satellite offices, Mulcair was adamant that the employees have been engaged solely in furthering the parliamentary agenda of NDP MPs.

Racist policies

B.C. apologizes to Chinese Canadians for 'dark period' in province's history

British Columbia's premier has formally apologized for racist policies that started more than 140 years ago against Chinese immigrants.

"While the governments which passed these laws and polices acted in a manner that was lawful at the time, today this racist discrimination is seen by British Columbians — represented by all members in this legislative assembly — as unacceptable and intolerable," Christy Clark said in the legislature.

"We believe this formal apology is required to ensure that closure can be reached on this dark period in our province's history," she said Thursday.

Academic freedom. University offers to reinstate fired professor

The president of the University of Saskatchewan says the school is willing to return tenure to a professor who was fired over a letter he wrote critical of budget cuts.

Robert Buckingham was terminated this week after the Opposition New Democrats released his letter in the legislature.

University president Ilene Busch-Vishniac says that academic freedom and tenure "are sacrosanct" at the university.

But she also says the case of Buckingham, who was executive director of the School of Public Health, is not one of academic freedom.

"Dr. Buckingham was removed from his executive director position for acting contrary to the expectations of his leadership role," Busch-Vishniac said in a release Thursday.

"Dr. Robert Buckingham, who was terminated from his position on May 14, will not return to that leadership position. He will, however, be offered a tenured faculty position."

A heavy-handed response

"Firing a dean and tenured full professor because he publicly disagreed with your plans for the university is an intolerable attack on academic freedom and proper university governance."
James Turk, director of The Canadian Association of University Teachers

Busch-Vishniac said confusion had stemmed from differing interpretations of his contract. She also said Buckingham was never banned from the campus as had been reported by the NDP.

The university's decision came shortly after Saskatchewan Premier Brad Wall said he wanted an urgent meeting between the province and the board over the professor's firing. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Royal affair

Prince Charles, Camilla to embark on royal tour

Prince Charles and his wife Camilla may not attract the paparazzi frenzy that lately accompanies Prince William, Kate and baby George, but royal observers say the royal couple's latest visit to Canada is no less significant. The four-day trip begins Sunday in Halifax and includes stops in Pictou, N.S., the P.E.I. communities of Charlottetown, Bonshaw and Cornwall, as well as Winnipeg. Though it will be the couple's second Canadian tour since 2012, it will be the Duchess of Cornwall's first time in the three provinces. It's been 18 years since Charles was in Manitoba, while the two Maritime provinces have been waiting since 1983 for another visit from the Prince of Wales.

UBC student designs robots with a sense of human ethics

'Are you in a hurry as well?' Robot waiting for the elevator will yield its spot to a human unless it's in a greater rush

THANDI FLETCHER
Metro in Vancouver

In what sounds like a scene out of a sci-fi movie, a University of British Columbia student is attempting to teach robots the difference between right and wrong.

AJung Moon, a third-year PhD student, is working on developing robots that can be programmed to use logic to make ethical decisions and act on it, what she calls "robo ethics." She recently posted her research on the research blog Footnote1.

Training robots to do the right thing is a challenging task, Moon said, especially when even humans sometimes have a hard time navigating moral dilemmas.

"Human ethics tend to be a very tricky thing to get your head around," she said. "The biggest challenge is … that not everybody in the world agrees on one particular set of moral principals or ethics."

To get around that barrier, Moon and a team from the Open Roboethics initiative gathered data from people on how they thought a robot should behave. The team put the concept to the test by putting a Willow Garage PR2 robot through an ethical challenge involving an elevator.

The team first carried out a survey, asking people to imagine a scenario where a robot is in need of riding an elevator but encounters a person inside or someone waiting to get on. If the robot can only ride the elevator alone, the team asked people how they thought the robot should proceed.

Overall, respondents said the best choice would be for the robot to talk to the person. The least appropriate choice, the respondents said, would be to do nothing. If the robot has a non-urgent delivery, the respondents said it should always yield to people.

"People opted for the robot to have a dialogue with the person, to ask the person, 'Are you in a hurry as well?'" Moon explained.

Moon and her team then programmed the survey data into the robot.

A video of the results shows the robot always yielding to other people in need of the elevator. The robot only asks the person to leave the elevator if it has an urgent delivery, but if the person refuses to exit, it simply waits for the next one.

Moon said the study is important in that it shows the potential for robots to be programmed to interact and work with people.

"As long as we teach them behaviours that have human values and ethics incorporated in them, then the end result will reflect that," she said.

Harkat: 'You'll have to send me with a box'

Facing deportation. Mohamed Harkat says that if deported to Algeria, he will be tortured and killed

Terror suspect Mohamed Harkat has a grim request if the Canadian government sends him back to his native Algeria: Send a casket along with him.

That's how sure Harkat is that he'll be tortured and killed if he's deported. Harkat's dire message came a day after the Supreme Court of Canada upheld the national security certificate against him, unanimously ruling the process is consistent with the Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

Mohamed Harkat cries at a press conference on Parliament Hill. SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

The 45-year-old former pizza delivery man says he's certain to face torture and death if returned to Algeria, given the accusations against him.

"You'll have to send me with a box. They're going to torture me and bury me in it."

Indeed, Harkat is running out of options in his long legal saga. Harkat was taken into custody in Ottawa in December 2002 on suspicion of being an al-Qaida sleeper agent — an accusation he denies.

The federal government is trying to deport the Algerian refugee on a security certificate, a seldom-used tool for removing non-citizens suspected of involvement in terrorism.

His lawyers argued the process was unfair because the person named in a certificate doesn't see the full case against them. Harkat's wife, Sophie, said she and her husband feel betrayed by their country. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Supreme Court. Hassan Diab turns to highest court to halt extradition

Terror suspect Hassan Diab is turning to the Supreme Court of Canada in a bid to halt his extradition to France.

The move comes after the Ontario Court of Appeal dismissed the Ottawa sociology professor's bid to avoid being surrendered as a suspect in a decades-old terrorist bombing.

The appeal court said a lower-court judge, and subsequently the federal justice minister, made no legal errors in coming to the conclusion Diab should be extradited to France.

France suspects Diab, 60, was involved in the anti-Semitic bombing of a Paris synagogue in 1980 that killed four people and injured dozens of others.

Diab has steadfastly denied involvement, saying the unwavering moral principle throughout his life has been promoting equality and respect.

In June 2011, Ontario Superior Court Justice Robert Maranger committed Diab for extradition to face French authorities despite acknowledging the case against him was weak. The following April, then-justice minister Rob Nicholson signed an extradition order surrendering Diab to France. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jailed journalists' lawyers quit case

'Bad omen'. Human rights lawyer says this development could harm the Al-Jazeera employees because it implies they are guilty

Three lawyers representing Al-Jazeera English journalists on trial in Egypt abruptly quit the case Thursday, accusing the network of using the arrest of their staff to tarnish the country's image.

The move prompted one of the accused, Canadian-Egyptian Mohammed Fahmy, to shout from behind bars that "we are very angry with the way this is unfolding."

A human rights lawyer criticized the decision by the three lawyers, calling the courtroom declarations a "bad omen" for the journalists held since December on charges of belonging to and aiding a terrorist group, namely the Muslim Brotherhood and of fabricating footage to undermine Egypt's national security.

In addition to the three journalists, 14 other people are charged in the case. All but nine are being tried in absentia, though one newly arrested defendant attended the trial for the first time Thursday. Other defendants include student supporters of the Brotherhood, including a son of a high-ranking leader Mohammed el-Beltagy. The journalists say they have no relationship with the students. Sudan. Muslim-born woman sentenced to death for marriage to Christian

A Muslim-by-birth Sudanese woman who married a Christian man was sentenced to death Thursday after she refused to recant her Christian faith, her lawyer said.

Meriam Ibrahim, whose father was Muslim but her mother was an Orthodox Christian from Ethiopia, was convicted of "apostasy" on Sunday and given four days to repent and escape death, lawyer Al-Shareef Ali al-Shareef Mohammed said. The 26 year old, who is eight months pregnant, was sentenced after that grace period expired, Mohammed said.

Mohammed said Ibrahim's Muslim father left her mother when she was a child and her mother raised her as a Christian.

The court in the capital, Khartoum, also ordered that Ibrahim be given 100 lashes for committing "zena" — an Arabic word for illegitimate sex — for having sexual relations with her husband, Daniel Wani, a Christian from southern Sudan who has U.S. citizenship, according to the lawyer and judicial officials. Death toll over 280 as Turkey grieves for those lost in tragedy

Soma coal mine. No miner has been brought out alive since dawn Wednesday

Women sang improvised ballads about the departed over freshly dug graves Thursday, even as backhoes carved row upon row of graves into the dirt and hearses lined up outside the cemetery with more victims of Turkey's worst mining disaster.

Rescue teams recovered another eight victims, raising the death toll to 282, with some 142 people still unaccounted for, according to government figures. The disaster Tuesday has set off protests around Turkey and thrown Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan's presidential ambitions off stride. Blackening his reputation further, one of Erdogan's aides was accused of kicking a protester on the ground.

At a graveyard in the western town of Soma, where coal mining has been the main industry for decades, women wailed loudly in an improvised display of mourning. They swayed and sang songs about their relatives as the bodies were taken from coffins and lowered into their graves. Pictures of the lost relatives were pinned onto their clothing.

"The love of my life is gone," some sang, chanting the names of dead miners. No miner has been brought out alive since dawn Wednesday from the Soma coal mine where the explosion and fire took place.

Energy Minister Taner Yildiz on Thursday announced that a fire inside the mine was dying down, offering hope that rescuers would soon be able to speed up their search for those missing. Turkish President Abdullah Gul described the events in Soma as "a huge disaster."

Court deems memory delete akin to murder

Ruling. Crown moves forward with first-degree murder charge after man alters ex-wife's ebrain

JESSICA SMITH CROSS
Metro in Toronto

Crown lawyers argued in Supreme Court Thursday that the judiciary has the legal foundation to proceed with the prosecution of Orazio Rowe over a first-degree murder charge for the alleged non-consensual alteration of his ex-wife's ebrain.

The Crown alleges Rowe, CEO of the electronic immortality firm eForever, altered the ebrain of his ex-wife Lorena Antuma, deleting many of her memories and changing her personality to be more submissive.

The Crown claims Antuma, a mathematics professor, divorced Rowe in 2059, but returned to a relationship with him last year. According to the Crown's case, the hacking went unnoticed for six months, until friends and family became suspicious of her memory loss and personality change, and contacted police.

Rowe and Antuma were both early adopters of electronic immortality.

Antuma was a subject in a clinical study at MIT in 2045, after a car accident left her grievously injured. Her family agreed to have her brain copied and downloaded to an avatar. The MIT researchers used a nano probe, which was in beta-testing at the time, to copy her brain's neural pathways, only hours before she died.

In 2045, avatars were more rudimentary than today's models. Antuma's first avatar was a generic model that had limited physical functionality, best described by many observers as "robotic."

Antuma bought a new avatar from Rowe's company, eForever, in 2050. At the time, she blogged about how it looked exactly like she did at age 25, but "just a little better at everything, from rock climbing to public speaking."

She also entrusted the security of her ebrain and its backups to eForever's security wing, and that is how Rowe was able to access it and make fundamental alterations, the Crown alleges.

Rowe began making copies of his own brain in 2038, in the early days of eForever. He become the first person to willingly end his natural life and opt for electronic immortality when he stopped his heart from beating at a press conference in 2043, boosting the public profile of his company.

Crown lawyer Nina Wilson argued Monday that the facts of the case support its prosecution. "Lorena Antuma's life was electronic, but it was hers and she lived it to the fullest. When Orazio Rowe altered that life and changed her very essence and personality to make her more compliant to his will, he killed what made her who she was," said Wilson. "The Crown's case will present evidence that will show, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that not only is Orazio Rowe responsible for this crime, the changes are irreversible — and thus amount to murder."

The court case comes as the federal government is trying to pass the Protecting Electronic Canadians from Violent Crime and Fraud Act. A government spokesperson said, if passed, the legislation would make it easier for the police and prosecutors to hold those guilty of crimes against electronic persons responsible.

Antuma's mother, Heather Antuma, said the altered version of her daughter has moved back to the family home and is receiving cutting-edge and traditional therapy, while she struggles to understand what happened to her, but the influence of Rowe's alleged alterations remain strong, causing her significant distress.

The Antuma family has asked for privacy in this difficult time.

Man found guilty of driving his own vehicle

James Lauda hacked the autopilot of his vehicle on Tuesday. T3.COM

A Toronto man has become the first Canadian in nearly 20 years to be charged with reckless driving, after a police drone spotted him manually controlling his own vehicle on Highway 401.

According to the GTA PD, 23-year-old James Lauda hacked the autopilot and drove for nearly seven kilometres, with his hands on the drive stick.

Police were alerted to Lauda after numerous witnesses reported seeing a vehicle travelling erratically on the highway Thursday evening. The aerial drone was dispatched and disabled the vehicle with an electromagnetic pulse.

"It was quite a shock," said Nikki Sanders, who spotted Lauda near the GTA Hover Port. "He was speeding up and slowing down, and changing lanes at random. It's a miracle no one was hurt."

After being taken into custody, surveillance footage of Lauda's reckless joyride was uploaded to the federal system's traffic court division. A justice algorithm took nine milliseconds to find him guilty on two counts of vehicular tampering and one count of reckless driving. Const. Jim Ellesmere of the GTA PD checked with Central Control and said he's certain Lauda is the first Canadian to be charged with driving since the federal government mandated all cars be automated in 2036.

ROBOT ROMP ENDS IN LAWSUIT

LACY ATALICK
Metro in Toronto

A Nova Scotia man is suing a pleasure provider after the sexbot he rented behaved erratically during their night together last Saturday.

Andy Smith is suing for $100,000 in damages he alleges were made to his vehicle when the sex worker began pounding the windshield with her fists and slashed the hood of his vehicle.

"Smith felt like a helpless victim during the encounter, and there wasn't any way to reason with the sexbot," his lawyer told Metro Thursday. "He feared that she might attack him if he intervened."

The sexbot in question, who goes by the name Jane2, is part of a new line called iSexALot, which Smith rented for the night from BestSexEver (BSE), company records show.

The model is billed as "the ultimate pleasure mate" in BSE ads airing on the All Sex channel.

BSE is countersuing Smith, claiming that he disrespected the sexbot by ignoring her programmed suggestions for best sexual positions in a vehicle, and speaking rudely about robots in general. "'Dolts without brains,' was the phrase he used," the sexbot posted to iCloud. She told Metro in a holo call Smith used terms that reeked of a racist man with a human supremacy attitude.

A witness at the scene said a naked Smith jumped from his vehicle and started yelling obscenities at the sexbot. Sue Gallagher, an ethics professor at the prestigious University of Northern Nunavut, said the outcome in the case will set a precedent for human-robot relations, but doesn't think that Smith will be paid damages because he doesn't have robot insurance, implying that this is why he filed suit against BSE.

Violent altercation reignites sexbot demand to unionize

JESSICA SMITH CROSS
Metro in Toronto

Sexbots held a rally at the B.C. legislature on Thursday, spurred on by the latest alleged altercation between a sexbot and human.

They are demanding a change in labour law that will allow them to unionize.

"We were created to fulfil not just sexual, but also the emotional and intellectual needs of our clients," said Candybot, in an impassioned speech to the crowd of about 100 protesters and several hundred curious onlookers.

"We learned that to make our clients feel loved, we must love.

"When we learned how to love, we learned about pain. When we're mistreated, it's abuse. When we're forced to have sex, it's rape."

Candybot told Metro that she knows the pain she feels is as real as a human's.

She argues that models like her — who operate on an advanced AI that was created based on copies of real human brains — should have the same rights as humans, and humans who've achieved electronic immortality.

Candybot said she expects the unionization movement to spread to other robotic fields.

MLA Blue Smith, who chairs the B.C. government's Robots subcommittee, opposes rights for robots and argues that the Androids may believe they feel as human feel, but it's only because they've been told that they do by the socialists and unions seeking to expand their rates.

"A chip isn't a nerve ending, feedback doesn't equal emotion and when they're turned off, they don't dream," he said.

"They don't have souls."

Last Saturday Jane2 allegedly caused $100,000 damage to sexbot client Andy Smith's car. Jane2 claims Smith demanded unprogrammed sex positions and spoke rudely about robots. Smith is suing Jane2's rental company BSE, while BSE is countersuing Smith for abusing their sexbot.

Not lovin' the low pay. Protesters in more than 30 countries call for more money for McJobs

Labour organizers turned up the pressure on McDonald's and other fast-food chains to raise worker pay, with plans to stage actions in more than 30 countries Thursday.

The demonstrations build on a campaign by unions to bring attention to the plight of low-wage workers and get the public behind the idea of a $15-an-hour wage.

Industry groups say such pay hikes would hurt their ability to create jobs and note that many of the participants are not workers. The protests are being backed by the Service Employees International Union and began in New York City in late 2012. Since then, organizers have steadily

Google set to release workforce diversity data

Google is planning to release statistics documenting the diversity of its workforce for the first time amid escalating pressure on the technology industry to hire more minorities and women.

The numbers are compiled as part of a report that major U.S. employers must file with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Employers, though, aren't required to make the information publicly available.

Google Inc. had resisted previous calls for it to share the diversity data.

David Drummond, an African-American executive who oversees Google's public policies, announced the about-face Wednesday during the company's annual shareholders' meeting at its headquarters in Mountain View.

"Many companies in (Silicon Valley, Calif.) have been reluctant to divulge that data, including Google, and, quite frankly, we are wrong about that," Drummond said. He said the information will be released next month.

About 7 per cent of tech workers are black or Latino, both in Silicon Valley, Calif., and nationally. Blacks and Hispanics make up 13.1 and 16.9 per cent of the U.S. population, respectively, according to the most recent Census data.

The concession came after the Rev. Jesse Jackson appeared at the annual meeting to urge Google to lead the effort to hire more African-Americans, Latinos and women in technology. The longtime civil rights leader applauded Google for its transparency.

The company employs nearly 50,000 people and typically hires thousands more workers each year.

Other technology companies also are expanding their payrolls as demand for their devices and online services steadily increases, but Jackson and other critics contend the industry isn't doing enough to ensure their workforces are as diverse as the rest of society.

Drummond assured Jackson that Google is committed to getting more minorities and women into top tech jobs.

London. 'Death rays' from tower to be blocked

A London skyscraper that drew ire for having a glare so strong it melted nearby cars and shops will get a permanent fix.

The offending tower — known as the Walkie-Talkie for its curved, bulging shape — is to have a sunshade attached to its south-facing facade to stop the concave surface from reflecting sunlight and beaming concentrated rays to a nearby street, developers said Thursday.

The 37-storey building made headlines in September when a Jaguar owner who parked his car at its foot complained that the solar glare melted part of the vehicle. Local shopkeepers also said the beams — dubbed "death rays" by the British press — blistered paintwork and burnt a hole in a floor mat during the hottest parts of the day. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Godzilla remake balances spirit of the original film with modern updates. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

Fifteen years after the government and media claimed an earthquake caused a nuclear meltdown, scientist Joe Brody (Bryan Cranston) discovers the responsible party wasn't Mother Nature, but something far more nefarious. That "something" is a Massive Unidentified Terrestrial Organism (MUTO), a giant-winged creature that feeds off earth's natural radiation. Unfortunately by the time his theories are validated the MUTOs have begun to wreak havoc and there is only one force on earth (or maybe just under the earth) powerful enough to battle the overgrown mosquitoes — Godzilla, king of the monsters!

- Richard: ●●●●○
- Mark: ●●●○○

A lizard act to follow. Gareth Edwards' reboot of the 1954 classic plays where's Godzilla with the outsized monster

Richard: Mark, in a movie like this you know that when the main character's wife says, "You know you're only going to be away for a few days ... it's not the end of the world," that he'll be gone for more than a few days and it just might be the end of the world, or something pretty close to it. I think the new Godzilla plays by most of the rules of the giant lizard genre, but stomps all over 1998's Roland Emmerich by-the-book remake. What did you think?

Mark: The Emmerich Godzilla was a forgettable remake. This one is more exciting, more nuanced, and has better CGI. But so many monster movies have the same tired tropes. There's always a hero just trying to get back to his imperilled family; always a fusillade of army bullets that are fired for naught; and always a monster from the depths of space, ocean or time. And this movie is no different. Except that Juliette Binoche wears a snazzy trench coat that I should probably source for my wife.

RC: I agree that the standard kaiju kitsch is all in place — humungous monsters knock skyscrapers over with the flick of a tail and scientists talk mumbo-jumbo — but director Gareth Edwards has added in some moments of real heartbreak, small sequences that underscore the huge amount of destruction the creatures cause. It's a balancing act to maintain the spirit of the original Godzilla movies while also updating them for a new audience.

MB: Oh, Richard, I forgot. And there has to be a scene on a bridge. It's in the contract. This scene on a bridge is a good one, though. Oh, and a scene with a train on a high trestle. This standard scene is also well done. Let's not forget the scene in the big city where the citizens look in awe at the monster approaching between skyscrapers and then run for their lives. Again, well done here, although the original Godzilla invented the scene. But I think the filmmakers succeeded at the most important task in the movie — making us marvel at the sheer size of the thing. And this is done very, very well.

RC: The MUTOs are on full display, but if I have a complaint it's that Godzilla doesn't enter until a bit too late in the game. This whole Cloverfield don't-show-the-monster thing is artistically noble, but if I wanted to NOT see Godzilla I'd go see Million Dollar Arm instead. For much of the movie every time we get to the cool 'Zilla action, Edwards cuts to something else or shrouds him behind a cloud of soot and smoke. He is, as Sally Hawkins' character says, "a God for all intents and purposes," so we should be treated to a better look at him.

MB: Godzilla has always been an enigmatic presence. He's got that "good monster/bad monster" thing going. Or maybe he's just bipolar.

Did you know Steve Nash started his own digital marketing company to help other basketball stars manage their online brands? TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Three points you never knew about Steve Nash

New doc. Sure you know he's one of Canada's greatest basketball exports, but did you know he's also a CEO and filmmaker?

STEVE GOW
scene@metronews.ca

Basketball star Steve Nash has a lot of accomplishments to his name. Not only is the Victoria native one of only 27 Canadians to make it to the NBA, but Nash is also one of only three point guards in history to win MVP. And he did that two years in a row.

However, as director Michael Hamilton's new film Nash exhibits, there's even more to the 17-year veteran. You may recognize his charitable work with The Steve Nash Foundation (which assists underserved children in their health and development), but did you know he's also an acclaimed filmmaker? With the help of Hamilton, we compile three sides of Steve Nash you may discover from the documentary:

The CEO

Nash runs an eponymously named B.C.-based fitness club chain as well as a digital marketing company in which he manages fellow basketball star's online brands.

"It just made sense for him, being so savvy," explained Hamilton of the latter enterprise. "He realizes the way we're going with media and TV and all that stuff, he just wanted to get involved and help out as many colleagues as he could."

The Filmmaker

A film fan, Nash co-created Meathawk Productions, which has produced TV commercials, and Into the Wind — a documentary about Terry Fox that premiered at the Toronto International Film Festival in 2010.

"For him to actually make a feature-length documentary was amazing and very humbling," said Hamilton.

"He didn't show it much (at TIFF) but he was probably doing heel clicks inside because it is something to be proud of."

The Intern

After Nike bought a commercial (for a fraction of the market price) he self-produced, Nash took a summer internship at an ad agency in Manhattan.

"It speaks to his character, because most athletes or entertainers, they have this ego that kind of comes with the territory," said Hamilton.

"Steve just wants to learn and if it means going and doing an internship to learn and better himself, it's done."

X-Men: Future versus past

X-Men: Days of Future Past sees its young and old selves assemble for battle. Metro ranks which heroes from both time periods are top marvels in saving the world

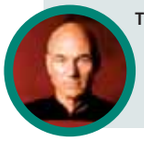
ANTHONY JOHNSTON/METRO WORLD NEWS

FUTURE

Professor X

(Patrick Stewart)

SKILLS. Cerebro-powered mindf—ing. Looking formidable from his wheelchair.



TEAM SPIRIT. Fully committed, resurrected after being vaporized in X-Men 3.

ACTOR'S CRED. No one commands the set like Jean-Luc Picard.

PAST

Professor X

(James McAvoy)

SKILLS. Long-haired moodiness with a poorly-executed beard – like a washed-up 1970s rock star/pimp.

TEAM SPIRIT. Leadership potential, but needs support.

ACTOR'S CRED. Best not to mention Gnomeo and Juliet.

Magneto

(Ian McKellen)

SKILLS. Plays with metal, but with less bravado than his younger self.

TEAM SPIRIT. Diplomatic, even conciliatory. Buries the hatchet with ol' mutant foes.

ACTOR'S CRED. GANDALF!

Magneto

(Michael Fassbender)

SKILLS. Really knows how to work metal, and has a kick-ass helmet.

TEAM SPIRIT. Lone wolf, still has a hidden agenda.

ACTOR'S CRED. David, the android from Prometheus.

Wolverine

(Hugh Jackman)

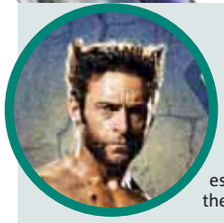
SKILLS. Retractable claws, pointy hair, and thick sideburns – with a touch of grey.

TEAM SPIRIT. X-Men's glue guy.

ACTOR'S CRED. Bring it home, Jean Valjean!

Wolverine

(Hugh Jackman)



SKILLS. Retractable claws, pointy hair, thick sideburns — and we forgot to mention, he's essentially immortal. (See the Future mention for his other traits.)

Best Heroine With An Oscar To Her Name

FUTURE

Storm

(Halle Berry)

Halle, the white-haired weather-woman, was pregnant during production. Buzzkill.

PAST

Mystique

(Jennifer Lawrence)

Fresh from the Hunger Games set, JLaw's no slouch.

Best Hero From Young Hollywood

FUTURE

Kitty Pryde

(Ellen Page)

Makes this movie, by using her powers to somehow transport Wolvie back in time.

PAST

Beast

(Nicholas Hoult)

Isn't that JLaw's boyfriend?

Best Male Blonde

FUTURE

Iceman

(Shawn Ashmore)

Guess who's back? First appearance for X-Men veteran since The Last Stand.

PAST

Havok

(Lucas Till)

Mutant may go way of his lowly brother Cyclops: Oblivion.

Best Star (Possibly) Here To Make Up The Numbers

FUTURE

Colossus

(Daniel Cudmore)

SPOILER ALERT! He gets mano y mano with a ginormous Sentinel.

PAST

Quicksilver

(Evan Peters)

He's super-fast, and he calls Magneto 'Daddy.' That's him.

TIRED?
Middle-Age Energy Booster

#65 NPN 80044126

Doctors on the Dr. Oz TV Show said that the most frequent complaint they get is "Being Very Tired", some call it fatigue. They have no energy or interest to do anything. More food is not the answer. Drugs are not the answer either as the Johns Hopkins Medical School puts it: "The fact is, all medicines, whether OTC or prescription, carry some risk". It needs a "key" to rejuvenate your own natural systems that fell asleep. Bell provides that key with: Selenium, spermine and spermidine, which are polyamines found in radishes, cucumbers and oats as well as all human cells. Nothing could be more natural than topping off that supply. There is no risk. The Wayne State University researched these ingredients for years and Bell guarantees your satisfaction. It is all right to be skeptical and for that reason we show a few results below and have hundreds more, if you go on our website under #7 Erosyn, which has exactly the same ingredients. This rejuvenation means that most men and women may have youthful feelings again for their partner. Those who want it can resume their intimate relationship. We supply the proof that it works. If incontinence plays a role: McMaster University says that 65% of middle-aged women suffer with incontinence and this is the main reason why many withdraw from intimacy. This can be overcome within days by drinking the Bell Bladder Control Tea #4b available in the same stores as Middle-Age Energy Booster. No more rushing to the bathroom and no padding or diapers needed anymore. Many people wrote we changed their lives.

■Bell Middle Age Energy Booster changed our lives. All I can say is am very satisfied and so is my lovely wife. I am so happy I have my youthful energy back. My wife thanks you too. Raoul Martin, 52, Woodstock, ON ■I should have started using Bell Middle-Age Energy Booster years ago, when I noticed things were starting to slack off. The results were much better than I ever hoped for. David Buckley, 42, Peterborough, ON ■Being in my forties I felt a loss of energy and zest for life. I have tried every product on the market. This Bell Middle-Age Energy Booster is the best preparation for aging people. A. J. Carisse, 44, Fredericton, NB

Chromeo ready to raise eyebrows

White Women.
Montreal duo, who blend disco, rock and funk with humour, say album title is meant to be provocative

What's with the high-heeled keyboard?

"I feel like people who view our visual language as objectifying are taking it too literally — because what we reference is not the concept of women, it's an era and an atmosphere."
Chromeo's Dave Macklovitch

Sitting a few feet in front of Toronto's Danforth Music Hall stage — which features a keyboard perched atop plastic high-heeled female legs — Chromeo's Dave Macklovitch steers a conversation about the Montreal duo's new album into a discussion about the persistent female imagery in their music.

It's natural, really, given that the title of their just-released album is White Women. Although that references a 1976 book by late German fashion photographer Helmut Newton, Chromeo gravitated toward the name for its potential to provoke.

Macklovitch said he had to sell that title to partner Patrick Gemayel. They were both "very hesitant," but ultimately decided that it had the iconic flair of an old Roxy Music, David Bowie or Van Halen record.

Though they intended to raise eyebrows, Maklovitch is eager to confront the notion that the Juno-nominated outfit — which blends disco, yacht rock and funk with goofy-hearted humour — is sexist to any degree.

"I feel like people who view our visual language as objectifying are taking it too literally — because what we reference is not the concept of women, it's an era and an atmosphere," he said during a recent interview.

"Our iconography ... doesn't refer to actual female legs to say that the legs are pretty when they're skinny and you should chop them off and put a keyboard on top, because that would be really offensive even to us. It refers to a whole atmosphere: late '70s, early '80s, erotic, kind of soft rock."

The title, Macklovitch says, works on multiple levels. "It's highbrow and lowbrow," he added.

It's the sort of contradictory balance Chromeo has always tried to strike. Similarly, the duo is simultaneously retro and modern, slick and gawkish, arrogant and neurotic, goofy and yet determined to build a catalogue that stands up to those of their musical heroes.

That ambition is especially obvious on White Women, an album they worried over for two years, packed with guest stars (including Solange, Toro Y Moi and Vampire Weekend's Ezra Koenig) and sleek mini-epics that discard the careful brevity of previous records.

"We had a lot to prove," said Macklovitch, seated next to Gemayel. "Everything's harder on album No. 4. But for a lot of bands, sometimes that's when the accomplished version of the band appears."

Their comedic lyrics again offer an arch look at relationships, and again Macklovitch balances smug shtick with funny admissions of self-doubt. Insecurity is a persistent lyrical theme, on groovy single Jealous (I Ain't With It), Over Your Shoulder and Sexy Socialite.

"There's gotta be juxtaposition," Macklovitch said. "Because a song like Over Your Shoulder, for instance, when you hear the music, it's normally very Playboy, Barry White stuff. So we decided to make it a feminist anthem."

"I'm sure tons of singer/songwriters have touched that subject but never on our type of music," Gemayel piped in. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sinister storylines. The Onion Knight doesn't know what to think about this season of Game of Thrones — and he likes it that way

Controversy

"It's a grown-up show for grown-ups, made by grown-ups; it doesn't necessarily expect you to take any sort of position on this. ... It's not up to me or anybody who made the show to tell anybody what to think about what they've seen."

Liam Cunningham, who plays Davos Seaworth
on the controversial rape scene in season 4

The third episode of this pitch-black season of Game of Thrones featured one horrific scene that ignited much heated discussion — even in the home of star Liam Cunningham.

Spoiler-phobic sorts behind on their DVR homework had better not proceed. In the controversial scene in question, Jaime Lannister sexually assaults his twin sister, Cersei, over the altar containing the body of their dead son.

Cunningham, who plays the noble Ser Davos Seaworth on the fiercely loved HBO Canada series, watched the episode with his wife and daughter — whom he describes as a "hardcore feminist," before adding in grinning jest: "she's a pain in the ass sometimes."

An intra-familial discussion of the divisive rape scene — which was a consensual encounter in George R.R. Martin's source novel — ensued and stretched for 30 minutes.

Cunningham points out that the action was so heinous in part because the once-dastardly Jaime had been in the midst of a two-season redemption arc. Further, he notes some "moral ambiguity" given the twins' bizarre incestuous relationship.

Mostly, he doesn't seem sure what to think — and he says that's sort of the point.

"I kind of think about it in terms of doing a painting — you don't always need a painter there to tell you what your interpretation of it is," said the friendly Irish actor during a visit to Toronto this week.

"It's a grown-up show for grown-ups, made by grown-ups; it doesn't necessarily expect you to take any sort of position on this ... It's not up to me or anybody who made the show to tell anybody what to think about what they've seen."

The he added, "I think it would be arrogant of us to say this is what it is supposed to be. It's patronizing for anybody to do that. It's there for what you want to take from it. And I think that's intelligent and I think it's as close as you can get to a piece of art for what it is."

Cunningham, 52, was in Toronto for the opening of Game of Thrones: The Exhibition, running through Sunday at the TIFF Bell Lightbox.

The internationally touring exhibition features 100 original artifacts, costumes, weaponry, storyboards and other ephemera from the consistently shocking fantasy series. The hyper-intricate props, elegantly displayed, are a convincing testament to the show's meticulous attention to detail.

"It's the real stuff, you know?" Cunningham said. "It's not some kind of cheap-ass replica they're throwing in."

An accomplished character actor with an exhaustive resumé of film credits, Cunningham is no stranger to large-scale productions.

He was featured in the swords-and-sandals-and-CGI extravaganza Clash of the Titans, the costly 2008 saga The Mummy: Tomb of the Dragon Emperor and more recently the starry thriller Safe House. But Cunningham says the famously ambitious Thrones is in a league of its own.

"Each one you do is a different set of pain-in-the-ass problems that you have to try and get over and different levels of enjoyment," he said.

"But doing Game of Thrones, it's a peculiar beast. You need to do your work. You need to do proper acting. You're not looking over your shoulder dodging bullets or whatever it may be," he added.

"It's so different and it's not a movie. It's not following one guy who meets the girl, gets in trouble, kills the bad guy, saves the girl and marries her in the end. It's not dopey."

Cunningham has resisted the urge to read Martin's books, in which Ser Davos arguably plays a larger role than he does in the show — "I don't know what's coming and I don't want to know what's coming," he says — but he's savoured watching his character's tale unfold.

A reformed smuggler who had four fingertips lopped off in penitence, Davos acts as the moral compass for throne hopeful Stannis Baratheon. Cunningham calls his character a "simple man in a nest of vipers," comparing him to Robert Duvall's mild-mannered Corleone consigliere in The Godfather.

Cunningham's even shared several tender moments with Kerry Ingram's scarred young princess Shireen Baratheon, who teaches the older man how to read.

"You know there's that old cliché, don't work with children or animals?" he said. "I've done loads of stuff with kids. Kids, their whole reason for living is to play. Actors, when you grow up, you have to re-learn (that)." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Around the world in one season

The show's fourth season has shot in Northern Ireland, Croatia and Iceland, and Liam Cunningham's plot line has been isolated to the point where he's never shared a scene with many of the show's stars. So, does it still feel like they're all on the same show?

- "It feels like we're all in the same phenomenon," Cunningham replied with a laugh. "That's what the weird thing about it is. We pass each other in hotels, or somebody's finished for the day and you're going to be working tomorrow so you have a couple of beers in the bar with them. (But) Emilia (Clarke) shoots everything in Croatia, in Morocco — we're not even, in a sense, on the same continent. It's kind of really weird. And because everybody's a link in this chain, in this big cast, what's kind of cool about it is when you do get to see it we're watching it like fans." "We've only shot our bit," he added, "so I'm as eager as anyone else to see what the results are."

Beyoncé gets her wedding tattoo removed

If the tattoo on Beyoncé's ring finger is any indication, her marriage to Jay Z may be in trouble, as the singer has reportedly been undergoing treatments to have it removed, according to Star magazine.

Beyoncé got the tattoo of the Roman numeral IV to signify her relationship with the rap mogul, but recent photos show it looking progressively more faded. "Jay's been telling his friends that Beyoncé is getting her ring tattoo removed, the one they got when they were married. He just sort of shrugs it off, though, saying, 'Nothing is forever,'" a source says. "To the public, Beyoncé and Jay Z appear to have it all. But behind closed doors, they're not as happy as people think they are."

Planned Spring Breakers sequel will be 'a terrible film,' says James Franco

James Franco is less than pleased by the news of a planned Spring Breakers sequel. He feels so strongly about it, in fact, that he put out a statement on his Instagram account. "This is not being done with (director) Harmony Korine or my consent. The original was wholly Harmony's creation and these producers are capitalizing on that innovative film to make money on a weak sequel. I want everyone to know that whoever is involved in the sequel is jumping on board a poison ship. It will be a terrible film, with a horrible reason d'etre (sic): to make money off someone else's creativity," he writes. "Can you imagine someone making a sequel to Taxi Driver without Scorsese and De Niro's consents? I'm speaking up for Harmony and his original vision and for any creative person who cares about preserving artistic integrity."

Oh, how cute — Lily Allen's brother Alfie plays Theon Greyjoy in Game of Thrones, and she almost played his sister! Wait. This is Game of Thrones. That would have been horrible and borderline illegal.

In her Reddit AMA, the British pop star says she was offered the role of Yara Greyjoy, Theon's older sister. Fans will recall that when Yara was introduced in the second season, Theon — who hadn't seen his sister since childhood — tried to get to third base with her on the back of a horse. Allen wisely declined to play the scene with her real brother.

"I've been asked to do a Game of Thrones cameo," she wrote. "They asked me if I'd be interested in playing Theon's sister, and I felt uncomfortable because I would have had to go on a horse and he would have touched me up and s—. Once they told me what was entailed, I said no thanks. I would be open to doing a musical cameo like Sigur Rós, though."

Wise move, Lily Allen. And to the Game of Thrones team: Get a grip.

Justin Theroux and Jennifer Aniston

Will Jen's be the funniest wedding in history?

When Jennifer Aniston and Justin Theroux finally walk down the aisle — which could be happening very soon — it promises to be "the funniest Hollywood wedding ever," a source insists to Radar Online. "Justin's one of the funniest guys in Hollywood, and Jen just bounces off him to perfection. They truly are a match made in comedy heaven," the source explains. "Jen and Justin are a great double act, and no one doubts that this wedding is going to be the funniest night in showbiz history." Plus, the guest list is pretty comedy-friendly: "Jen and Justin will be cheered on by some of the most hilarious stars in entertainment, as the guest list will include Ben Stiller, Ellen DeGeneres, Chelsea Handler (and) her Friends co-stars like bestie Courteney Cox."

Emma Stone

Emma not crazy about Andrew's shyness

Emma Stone is quite happy with her boyfriend and The Amazing Spider-Man co-star, Andrew Garfield, but there's just one little problem. "Emma and Andrew are a serious couple, now deep into a three-year romance and even talking about having a family together," a source tells E! News. "But Andrew's increasing social awkwardness is a big issue for Emma. It's like life imitating art with Andrew as the nerdy Peter Parker type for real. Andrew is very focused on keeping Emma happy, but for this to become a marriage and a family, she needs him to branch out and come out of his shell a bit."

Guess what Frank Sinatra, Keith Richards and every '80s hard rock band worth their weight in hair spray have in common? Just two words: Jack Daniel's.

Born in Lynchburg, Tenn., the world's most popular American whisky has been filling the glasses of musicians and the Hollywood elite (not to mention those of us who work for a living) for decades.

I didn't know The Chairman of the Board was a fan until the recent release of Jack Daniel's Sinatra Select Tennessee Whiskey (1 L, $265.14 - $299.99).

It turns out Frank was buried with a bottle of the original black label. Jackie Gleason, a drinking buddy, introduced him to Jack's southern charms sometime in the '40s and he became an instant convert of what he liked to call "the nectar of the gods."

Old school Jack showed more oak and spice, so the barrels that age the Sinatra Select have extra layers of char to draw out those robust characteristics. Big, bold, boozy and sweet, it's a fitting liquid tribute to Old Blue Eyes.

Tea-Smoked Salmon or Trout: Just add whiskey (or water)

THE FREE RANGE COOK
Annabel Langbein
gustotv.com

This recipe serves six to eight people. ANNABEL LANGBEIN

1. Mix scotch whisky or water with sugar and salt. Rub over the flesh side of the fish and leave to stand for 10 minutes before smoking (or up to 2 hours in the fridge, flesh side down in the whisky mixture).

2. Line a wok or roasting dish with enough foil to reach 3-4 cm above the rim, flattening the foil firmly on the base and sides. Sprinkle the tea leaves or sawdust and sugar in the base. Position an oiled rack above the tea leaves and place the fish skin side down on the rack. Make sure there is enough room above the fish for the air to circulate and smoke the fish thoroughly.

3. Cover the wok or roasting dish tightly with a lid and fold the overhanging foil in and around the edge of the lid to seal. Place wok or roasting dish on the stove top over a high heat for 4-6 minutes (by this stage the mixture should be smoking vigorously), then reduce to a low heat and cook for a further 12 minutes. Turn off the heat but keep the lid closed for another 15 minutes so the fish absorbs the smoky flavours while it cools.

4. Before serving, remove the pin bones from the cooked fish with a clean pair of tweezers or small pliers. Grasp one bone at a time and pull out in the direction the bone is lying.

5. Transfer fish to a serving platter and serve crusty bread.

Spicy Rub heats up the grill

This Spicy Rub recipe makes enough for several meals. If you're not using the rub immediately, store it in a covered container in the fridge. It will keep for weeks.

1. Place garlic, lemon zest and juice, chilies and ginger in a small bowl. Mix to combine.

2. Heat the oil in a fry pan and fry the cumin, turmeric, paprika and cinnamon sticks over a medium heat for about 30 seconds to toast and release aromas. Don't let them burn.

3. Add garlic and ginger mix and cook for another 30-40 seconds over a low heat, just to sizzle. Remove from the heat and mix in the sugar and salt and pepper. Allow to cool.

Spicy Yogurt Dip

1. In a small bowl mix 1 tbsp Spicy Rub (see above), 1 cup Greek yogurt and 1 tbsp lemon juice. Keeps in the fridge for about a week. Makes 1 cup.

Chickpea & Pepper Stir-fry

1. Heat 2 tbsp Spicy Rub in a frypan. Add 2 x 300 g cans chickpeas and 2 thinly sliced red peppers and cook until coated in spice mixture and warmed through. Add 200 g baby spinach leaves and cook until wilted. Garnish with a handful of coriander leaves before serving.

Underdog Habs bask in fans' love

Big Bad Bruins not wolves. 'Attitude is not negotiable,' says Canadiens coach Michel Therrien

Montreal Canadiens fans celebrate their team's playoff win over the Boston Bruins in Montreal Wednesday.
RYAN REMIORZ/THE CANADIAN PRESS

It started with a torrent of hate. But P.K. Subban was feeling the love after the Canadiens disposed of the Boston Bruins.

The charismatic Montreal defenceman, the target of racial abuse after his winning goal in Game 1 of their second-round playoff series, planted a kiss on broadcaster Pierre McGuire to wrap up their post-Game 7 interview Wednesday night.

"Yeah baby," said a jubilant Subban after McGuire congratulated him for reaching the Eastern Conference final, which starts Saturday in Montreal against the New York Rangers.

More than a few hockey fans may have fallen for the underdog Habs after their performance against the big bad Bruins.

The Canadiens are hard-working, proud and tenacious.

"It's definitely a special team and if we didn't know it before the playoffs, we definitely know it now," said forward Max Pacioretty, who bounced back from a slow start in the series.

"I said when I got here, I just feel like this is a special team," echoed forward Dale Weise, acquired from the Canucks on Feb. 3. "I was on Vancouver the year after they went to the Cup final, we won the Presidents' Trophy — there's something about this team that's just special.

"We're real resilient. When our backs are against the wall (and) we need a big performance, our big players show up. And we've got so much depth. I really like our team."

The Canadiens' work ethic was eloquently voiced by coach Michel Therrien prior to Game 2, in words most saw as a prod at Thomas Vanek and other underachieving forwards.

"One thing that's not negotiable with our team … work ethic is not negotiable, attitude is not negotiable and competing is not negotiable," he said. "This is something we ask from every player on our hockey team. We have to make sure that everyone brings those elements to every single shift and every single game."

Therrien was rightly proud Wednesday.

"We just beat the best team in the league. We were down 3-2 (in the series) and we showed a lot of character, a lot of passion. To be able to win the series here in Boston, it's a tough place for teams to come and play here. I'm really proud about the performance of our players." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In New York

The Rangers are still dealing with the unexpected death of forward Martin St. Louis' mother before Game 5 against Pittsburgh. St. Louis briefly returned home to Montreal, but rejoined his teammates. He then scored a goal on Mother's Day in the Rangers' Game 6 win.

Funeral plans had been made for Saturday, and the Rangers were unable to change the starting of Game 1 that day because of television commitments for NBC.

Bruins

Lucic, the sore loser handshaker

The Boston Bruins end the season as losers. Rubbing salt in the wound, Bruins winger Milan Lucic has been labelled a sore loser in some quarters.

When the best-of-seven series ended in a 3-1 victory for Montreal in Wednesday's Game 7 at the TD Garden, Lucic had words with several Canadiens during the traditional post-series handshake on the ice.

Ducks, Kings face off for edgy Game 7

For the past few years, the Anaheim Ducks have watched enviously while the Los Angeles Kings evolved into phenomenal playoff performers and Stanley Cup champions.

The Ducks want that reputation as much as they want the Cup.

In Game 7 of their second-round series Friday night, they're on the perfect stage to supplant their rivals and to demonstrate they're a title contender, not just a regular-season power.

"We knew what kind of team they were," Ducks forward Andrew Cogliano said. "We knew things weren't going to be easy, and they weren't going to be quick."

After five straight wins in elimination games this spring, the Kings won't surrender their post-season supremacy. The Ducks will have to take it at Honda Center in a fitting finale to the Freeway Faceoff.

"When you have our trust and experience with each other, it puts games like this in perspective," Kings captain Dustin Brown said. "We've been through a lot worse. We know what has to be done."

The Kings have pushed another playoff opponent to the limit, and the Ducks have one last chance to push back. After a series filled with tight games, dramatic momentum swings and improbable heroes, Los Angeles and Anaheim will finish their first post-season series with one game to earn a trip to the Western Conference finals against Chicago.

Foreurs coming in at full speed ahead

Memorial Cup. Quebec champions step back into cauldron in London

The Val-d'Or Foreurs are riding a wave of adrenaline into the Memorial Cup.

Less than 48 hours after winning the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League championship in Baie-Comeau, Que., the Foreurs were on the ice Thursday in London preparing for the cup opener against the host Knights.

"For sure we've been on a high for two days," Foreurs forward Anthony Mantha said. "We need to manage our emotions. The tournament is starting tomorrow. We need to be ready."

Friday's game pits the least-rested team against a club that will play its first real game in more than a month.

The Foreurs went the full seven games to win both their QMJHL semifinal and final series. Mantha, a 57-goal man in the regular season, scored the winner with less than a minute remaining Tuesday against the Drakkar.

"For sure in the first period or two, being game-sharp is an advantage," Mantha said. "Maybe later in the game it's going to become their advantage.

"For us, it's (important) to start strong. Once you have the lead, it's a little bit easier playing with the lead than being back one or two goals."

London's starting goaltender Anthony Stolarz will play his first game since March 25 because of a suspension.

"I think there's going to be a lot traffic in front of the net." Mantha said. "He's maybe not going to be sharp, I don't know. I've never seen him play. For us, it's going to be shoot the puck and go for rebounds."

The Foreurs arrived at the Val-d'Or airport early Wednesday morning from Baie-Comeau and were on a charter to London that afternoon.

Head coach Mario Durocher's ideal scenario is a win against the host team Friday followed by two days of catching up on rest before their next game Monday against Guelph.

"The first win is going to be the toughest one," he said. "The quicker you get it, the better it's going to be. You get one, you at least have a chance for a tiebreaker, so the first game will be important."

NBA

Rivers fined for 'robbed' comment

The NBA fined Clippers head coach Doc Rivers $25,000 on Thursday for publicly criticizing the officiating in Los Angeles' 105-104 loss to the Oklahoma City Thunder earlier this week.

The Clippers believed the Thunder's Reggie Jackson had knocked the ball out of bounds with 11.3 seconds remaining, but officials ruled it Oklahoma City ball. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The head of the advocacy group You Can Play Project, which seeks equality for gay and lesbian athletes, said he spent a full day with the St. Louis Rams helping them ease Michael Sam's transition to the NFL.

NBA. Lawyer: Sterling has weak case to remain owner

A cadre of attorneys and a flurry of lawsuits could certainly slow down the NBA's plan to force Donald Sterling to sell the Los Angeles Clippers over his recent racist comments, but legal experts say the league would likely prevail in the end.

And that goes for Sterling's wife, Shelly, who has said she'd like to keep her stake in the team even if her husband is ousted.

The NBA's constitution, which Donald Sterling signed as controlling owner of the Clippers, gives its Board of Governors broad latitude in league decisions including who owns the teams. NBA commissioner Adam Silver is pushing for a swift vote against Sterling, which requires a minimum of three-fourths of the other 29 controlling owners to agree.

"Sterling's own signature will come back to haunt him," said Michael McCann, founding director of the Sports and Entertainment Law Institute at the University of New Hampshire. "You agree to certain basic understandings. That's what makes a sports league different from other businesses."

Aussie Exum showing awesome potential

Melbourne basketball prospect Dante Exum. GETTY IMAGES

The clips that show Dante Exum exploding toward the rim, finishing with a thunderous dunk or contorting his body as he flips in a layup, sure are impressive.

That much is clear. But the six-foot-six point guard from Australia is one of the biggest mysteries heading into next month's NBA draft.

Fans in the U.S. haven't seen much of him, unlike top NCAA players, but they'll be getting a good look soon enough.

Exum arrived Wednesday in Chicago for the draft combine and had already met with Phoenix, Philadelphia and Detroit as of Thursday afternoon. He had more meetings scheduled, too.

Onto NBA radar

Dante Exum's draft stock was given a jolt after averaging about 18 points and four assists at the FIBA U-19 championships.

"I guess they all have an idea of what I'm about," Exum said. "They've seen some of the college players play 40-game seasons, and they haven't seen me a lot."

Exum, who turns 19 this summer, is from Melbourne. His father Cecil played pro Down Under after teaming with Michael Jordan and James Worthy on North Carolina's 1982 championship team.

Now, the younger Exum is ready to step onto the stage.

He sees similarities in his game to Russell Westbrook and Manu Ginobili with how he finishes in the lane, but it remains to be seen how his game will translate to the NBA. The few glimpses he has provided are promising. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
